FICTION

Alchemist, The by Paulo Coelho

A young man named Santiago is on a quest to the Pyramids in Egypt following his "Personal Legend" to find a treasure. His adventures and experiences with the people he meets eventually help him discover the true treasures in his life.

Bel Canto by Ann Patchett

Somewhere in South America, at the home of the country's vice president, a lavish birthday party is being held in honor of the powerful businessman Mr. Hosokawa. Roxanne Cross, opera's most revered soprano, has mesmerized the international guests with her singing. It is a perfect evening-until a band of gun wielding terrorists take the entire party hostage. But what begins as a panicked, life-threatening scenario slowly evolves into something quite different, a moment of great beauty, as terrorists and hostages forge unexpected bonds and people from different continents become compatriots, friends and lovers.

Bell Jar, The by Sylvia Plath

The autobiographical novel describes an ambitious and brilliant young woman's search for values and her eventual breakdown.

Bridges of Madison County, The by Robert James Waller

Photographer Robert Kincaid meets Iowa farm wife Francesca Johnson while looking for the famous bridges. Her family is away, and the two discover an uncommon passion between them--one that cannot be denied or completely fulfilled.

Color of Water, The by James McBride

This is a young black man's search to uncover his white mother's past and his own identity. McBride examines his life, his own childhood in Brooklyn's Red Hook housing projects, and the love that guided his family's life.

DaVinci Code, The by Dan Brown

Robert Langdon is a Harvard professor of symbology who can't stay out of trouble. This mild – mannered academic finds himself entangled in a deadly conspiracy that stretches back centuries. Visiting Paris on business, he is awakened at 2:00 a.m. by a call from the police: an elderly curator has been murdered inside the Louvre, and a baffling cipher has been found near the body. Aided by the victim's cryptologist granddaughter, Langdon begins a danger-filled quest for the culprit, but the deeper he searches, the more he becomes convinced that long-festering conspiracies hold the answer to the art lover's death.

Farewell To Arms, A by Ernest Hemingway

This novel is about a love story based largely on the author's experiences as a young soldier in Italy when Hemingway, working as an ambulance driver in the war, fell in love with an English nurse.

Glass Castle: A Memoir, The by Jeannette Wall

This memoir revolves around the author's parents, who give the concept of bad parenting a whole new meaning. The irresponsible romantic of a father was an inventor of outlandishly useless devices, and her mother, an artist, was his abettor. As the two of them dragged the family around the country on the run from creditors and from one bad idea to another, they virtually ignored their four hapless children, except when they were giving them shoplifting lessons or stealing money for booze.

Grapes of Wrath, The by John Steinbeck

This is the saga of a family in 1939 that struggles through the Great Depression by laboring as Dust Bowl migrants. This novel focuses on the travels of bankrupt farmers as they struggle to deal with the problems of poverty plaguing their family as they head to the promise land of California.

Guernsey Literary and Potato Peel Pie Society, The (a novel) by Mary Ann Shaffer and Annie Barrows

Juliet Ashton writes to her publisher expressing her desire to stop covering the aftermath of WWII. At the same time, a Guernsey farmer (Guernsey was a British island once occupied by the Nazis), Dawsey Adams, invites neighbors to write to Juliet with their stories. This puts her off at first but eventually helps her find inspiration for her next book, and her life.

Help, The by Kathryn Stockett

Twenty-two-year old Skeeter has just returned home after graduating Ole Miss. She may have a degree, but it is 1962, Mississippi, and her mother will not be happy until Skeeter has a ring on her finger. Skeeter would normally find solace with her beloved maid Constantine, the woman who raised her, but Constantine has disappeared and no one will tell Skeeter where she has gone.

History of Love, The by Nicole Krauss

It has been decades since Leo Gursky first surrendered his heart, then wrote a book about it, at the tender age of ten, and he's been in love with the same person ever since. Leo believes his book is lost to time, but what he doesn't know is, not only has it survived sixty years without him, but it has also been an inspiration to others. Fourteen-year-old Alma was even named for a character from the book. When she realizes how deeply the story touched her lonely mother, she embarks on a search for answers.

Interview With The Vampire by Anne Rice

In a darkened room a young man sits telling the macabre and eerie story of his life—the story of a vampire, gifted with eternal life, cursed with exquisite cravings for human blood. Vampire Louie tells his epic story of love, betrayal, loneliness and hunger.

Known World, The by Edward P. Jones

This is a story of Henry Townsend, a black farmer and former slave, who falls under the tutelage of William Robbins, the most powerful man in Manchester County, Virginia. Making certain he never circumvents the law, Townsend runs his affairs with unusual discipline. But death and chaos soon take over.

Memoirs of a Geisha by Arthur Golden

Nitta Sayuri is a young Japanese woman who was taken from her home at the age of nine and sold into slavery as a geisha. She discovers a rare opportunity for freedom when the outbreak of WWII forces an end to the only life she has ever known.

Memory Keeper's Daughter by Jim Edwards

In a small-town, surgeon Dr. David Henry finds himself delivering his own twins. He recognizes the signs of Down's Syndrome in his daughter's face. In a split-second decision he asks the nurse to take his daughter away. As his wife mourns the missing piece in their perfect lives, David struggles with this painful secret that may pull his family apart.

My Sister's Keeper by Jodi Picoult

This is a heart-wrenching, controversial story of a family desperately trying to save their eldest daughter who has been dying from APL since she was two years old. This family is torn apart by conflicting needs and a passionate love that triumphs over human weakness. This novel examines what it means to be a good parent, a good sister, and a good person.

Nannie Diaries, The by Emma Mc Laughlin and Nicola Kraus

Written by two former nannies, the alternately comic and poignant satire punctures the glamour of Manhattan's upper class. Nanny takes a position caring for the only son of the wealthy X family. When the marriage begins to disintegrate, Nanny ends up involved way beyond the bounds of human decency or good taste.

Northern Light, A by Jennifer Donnelly

Sixteen-year-old Mattie, determined to attend college and be a writer against the wishes of her father and boyfriend, takes a job at a hotel in 1906 where the death of a guest renews her determination to live her own life.

On The Road by Jack Kerouac

This novel follows the adventures and travels of Sal Paradise and Dean Moriarty as they cross North America, usually broke, in search of belief and meaning.

Slaughterhouse Five by Kurt Vonnegut

After surviving the bombing of Dresden in WWII, Billy Pilgrim spends time on the planet Tralfamadon.

Walden by Henry David Thoreau

In this book, Thoreau offers his philosophy on life and his observations of nature gleaned from two years of solitude living in a cabin on Walden Pond in Massachusetts.

Yellow Raft in Blue Water, A by Michael Dorris

This novel is about three generations of Indian women, beset by hardship and torn by angry secrets, yet joined together by bonds of kinship.

NON-FICTION/BIOGRAPHY

127 Hours: Between a Rock and a Hard Place by Aron Ralston

Hiking into the remote Utah canyon lands, Aron Ralston felt perfectly at home in the beauty of the natural world. Then, at 2:41 P.M., eight miles from his truck, in a deep and narrow slot canyon, an eight-hundred-pound boulder tumbled loose, pinning Aron's right hand and wrist against the canyon wall. Through six days of hell, with scant water, food, or warm clothing, and the terrible knowledge that no one knew where he was, Aron eliminated his escape option one by one. Then a moment of stark clarity helped him to solve the riddle of the boulder--and commit one of the most extreme and desperate acts imaginable.

Alive: The Story of the Andes Survivors by Piers Paul Read

On October 12, 1972, a plane carrying a team of young rugby players crashed into the remote, snow-peaked Andes. Out of the forty-five original passengers and crew, only sixteen made it off the Angela's Ashes by Frank McCourt This novel is a best seller and the 1997 Pulitzer Prize winning memoir about a young boy growing up with his family in Ireland. Young Frank McCourt and his family try against all odds to escape the poverty and the hardships of living in the slums of pre-war Limerick.

Autobiography of a Face by Lucy Grealy

Lucy Grealy writes a candid memoir about her struggle with cancer as a child and her attempt to live a normal life as she matured. The story tells of her suffering in school as she contends with taunts and bullying. The book captures the battle between wanting to be an adult and wanting to remain as a child.

Blue Blood by Edward Conlon

As a Harvard graduate and an accomplished writer, Edward Conlon has a different view on things than most other New York City cops. The book is a memoir tracing his life and career from the time he was a rookie cop working tough neighborhoods up to the days he was a narcotics officer on his way to being a detective. The book also offers insight into the role of the family and deals with current issues about brutality and self-defense.

Fast Food Nation: The Dark Side of the All-American Meal by Eric Schlosser

The author charges that fast food has hastened the “malling” of the American landscape, widened the chasm between rich and poor, fueled an epidemic of obesity, and propelled the U.S. cultural imperialism abroad.

Friday Night Lights: A Town, A Team, and A Dream by H.G. Bissinger

In Texas, high school football has its own rabid hold over the faithful. H.G. Bissinger, a Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist, enters into the spirit of one of its most fervent shrines: Odessa, a city in decline in the desert of West Texas, where the Permian High School Panthers have managed to compile the best record in state annals. This is an examination of the town, the team, its coaches, and its young players.

In Cold Blood by Truman Capote

This novel is about the shocking story of the slayings of the Clutter family of Kansas, and the capture, trial, and execution of their murderers.

Into the Wild by Jon Krakauer

This is the true story of a young man who hitchhiked into the Alaskan wildlife and walked alone to Mt. McKinley before being found dead. The main character had given $25,000 in savings to charity and invented a new life for himself before his decomposed body was found by a moose hunter. It is a thrilling and haunting story of adventure and mystery.

Killer Angels, The by Michael Shaara

In the four most bloody and courageous days of our nation's history during the Civil War, two armies fought for two dreams. One dreamed of freedom, the other of a way of life. Far more than rifles and bullets were carried into battle. There were memories. There were promises. There was love. And far more than men fell on those Pennsylvania fields. Shattered futures, forgotten innocence, and crippled beauty were also the casualties of war.

This Boy's Life by Tobias Wolff

This is Tobias Wolff's memoir and moving tale of the frustrations and cruelties of growing up in a dysfunctional family in the 1950s and 1960s. Teenaged Wolff moves with his divorced mother from Florida to Utah to Washington State to escape her violent boyfriend. When she remarries, Wolff finds himself in a bitter battle of wills with his abusive stepfather.

Tuesdays with Morrie by Mitch Albom

The author, an alumnus of Brandeis University, tells of his meetings with a former professor suffering from Lou Gehrig's disease and all of the lessons he learned about life and death from his college mentor.
